PLEASE NOTE!!!

There is minimum E A Q of 320 for men and 200 for women when the prospective member does not have an E A Q from either of the previous two seasons. When employing the methods shown below use the minimum E A Q when the estimated E A Q is lower than the minimum. When the estimated E A Q is higher than the minimum then use the higher estimated E A Q

Methods to estimate the average quality for new members that did not establish an E A Q for either of the previous two seasons are as follows:

1. Compare the prospective member' s ability with your own. Find your personal E A Q from the final standings of the previous season or the list from the season prior to that (latest season has precedence). Supply the Estimated Average Quality for the prospective member in relation with your own E A Q.

2. Have the prospective member play a few games of count-up. List the total quality for each game. Add the total qualities for each game together and divide the sum by the number of games played. Double this figure and the result is a rough E A Q for the prospective member.

Quality is scoring 100 points or more in one turn for the Mixed League and scoring 95 points or more in one turn for the Ladies League.

CAPTAINS; PLEASE NOTE!!!!

The results derived from the use of these methods are approximate and do not relieve the player or team from possibly incurring penalties when the new player scores higher than the E A Q listed.
